

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

HIS Collection being primarily intended for use in the worship of the Church of Scotland, a short statement regarding the place of the Anthem in the Scottish National service has been thought desirable.

That the use of this class of composition has been exceptional hitherto, has been due very much to a prejudice against it, as necessarily inconsistent with the congregational character of our Psalmody, and as affording merely an opportunity to choirs for a musical display.

While the prejudice is intelligible from the unsuitableness for worship of some of the pieces which have found favour at times with choirs, or their inappropriate introduction, the objection to the proper use of good Anthems is not admitted. Metrical Psalms and Hymns are unquestionably best suited for congregational singing, and these, it is hoped, will continue to have the chief place in our praise; but a judiciously-chosen Anthem gives a useful variety to the service, and may be joined in by any who can sing and are willing to take a little trouble.

The æsthetic element in worship demands more consideration than it has received hitherto in the Church of Scotland, or in any of the other Presbyterian Churches of this country; and it is felt that the Anthem, and the other sacred compositions which for convenience we speak of under that general name, may in this respect be introduced with advantage. We cannot, however, too plainly state, and too strongly urge congregations to bear in mind, that their purpose is not to furnish æsthetic gratification, but to stimulate praise, and add to the number and variety of spiritual songs by which we may "speak to ourselves" or "teach and admonish one another."

With reference to the objection that Anthems can never be sung by congregations, but must be left entirely to choirs, even were the fact as stated, the objection would by many not be considered fatal. Much has been said in favour of leaving the singing in this part of the service to the choir alone; the congregation joining silently in praise, as they join silently in prayer, or being receptive of the teaching of the subject so interpreted for them, as they are receptive of the Scripture lessons and the sermon. It cannot be denied that the music ought to be more expressively sung by a select choir than by a mixed congregation. This, however, is obviously so liable to abuse that it is thought better to encourage the efficient aid of the congregation.

The great majority of the pieces in this Collection, accordingly, are of a comparatively simple character, intelligible in their devotional expression to all, and capable of being joined in by the majority in any congregation of average musical culture. Nothing is more to be deprecated than any change which should tend to make our praise less hearty or general; and therefore simplicity, as well as variety and excellence, have been kept steadily in view in the compilation of this book.

PREFACE.

Our Psalmody, however, will not become what it ought to be till greater interest is taken in the meetings for congregational practice. Complaint regarding this has long been general. It is hoped that additional interest will be given to these meetings by the use of this Authorized Collection. A few pieces—chiefly in the section with instrumental accompaniment—which may be found too difficult for worship by some congregations, have been admitted for the sake of others of higher musical attainment, and for class practisings.

The part of the service at which the Anthem may be introduced is left to the discretion of the minister, and ought to be determined by the kind of composition, and by its subject. It may with propriety be sung after one or other of the Scripture lessons, or after the sermon, or before the benediction. It has been too much the practice to introduce it only at the point last named. A Doxology or Dismission may be sung then; though even for the Doxology a more suitable part of the service may be found. A Psalm or Hymn to a familiar tune in which the whole congregation may join heartily, seems as a rule best suited for the closing act of praise. We should therefore recommend that in general the Anthem should be sung immediately after the reading of Scripture or after the sermon. In any case, it will be the duty of the minister to see that the Anthem chosen is in tone or subject appropriate to the rest of the service: the singing of one in the selection of which this has not been considered may mar the unity and devotional effect of the whole, even more than an unsuitable Hymn or an ill-adapted Tune.

To facilitate the selection of suitable Anthems, and afford ready means of reference, the Textual Anthems, placed first in each section of the book, have been arranged in the order of the books of the Bible; and of the miscellaneous pieces which follow, a Classified Index is appended. No apology is thought necessary for the introduction of the very few Hymns which will be found in the Metrical part.

The numbers of the Anthems follow consecutively from those of the Chants; and the paging at the bottom is in continuation of that in the pointed Psalter and Scripture passages.

Acknowledgments are cordially tendered to the following gentlemen for the use of copyright anthems and arrangements in this Collection : - Dr. Henry Allon, for arrangements Nos. 838 and 859, extracted from "Church Anthem" section of Congregational Psalmist; Dr. W. M. Cooke, for arrangements Nos. 792, 813, and 824, extracted from Congregational Church Music; Mr. J. T. - 1 Thou Sov'reign Lord of earth and skies, Supremely good, supremely wise, Fix thou the place of our abode; But may we still live near to God. Where'er our dwelling shall be found, We will thy throne of grace surround; An altar to thy name will raise, With sacrifice of prayer and praise.
- 2 With faith and with devotion, Lord, Teach us each day to hear thy Word; Grant us thy light to learn thy will, And strength our duties to fulfil. Our circle with thy presence bless; Keep out each root of bitterness; And may to each the last remove Be to the mansions of thy love.

HARMONY. HARMONY. HARMONY. HARMONY. HARMONY. HARMONY. Hark, hark, my soul! angelic songs are swelling O'er Earth's green fields and Ocean's wave-beat shore; How sweet the truth those blessed strains are telling Of that new life when sin shall be no more! Angels of Jesus, angels of light, Singing to welcome the pilgrims of the night!

2,

	Onward we go; for still we hear them singing-
MELODY.	"Come, weary souls, for Jesus bids you come!"
Treble voices only.	And, through the dark its echoes sweetly ringing,
	The music of the gospel leads us home.

3.

	Far, far away, like bells at evening pealing,
MELODY.	The voice of Jesus sounds o'er land and sea;
Male voices only.	And laden souls, by thousands meekly stealing,
	Kind Shenherd, turn their weary steps to thee

MELODY. Treble voices only.	Rest comes at length: though life be long and dreary, The day must dawn, and darksome night be past; Faith's journey ends in welcome to the weary, And heaven, the heart's true home, will come at last.
	5.
HARMONY.	Angels, sing on !—your faithful watches keeping, Sing us sweet fragments of the songs above; Till morning's joy shall end the night of weeping, And life's long shadow break in cloudless love. Angels of Jesus, angels of light, Singing to welcome the pilgrims of the night! Amen.

Great	Great might and con-ning are His pan - 0 - ply of war - On earth there is none like him						' him

 A castle is our God, a tower, A shield, and trusty weapon; He saveth us by His strong power From all the ills that happen. The Old Arch-fiend, I trow, Is in good earnest now; Great might and cunning are His panoply of war,— On earth there is none like him.

2 Stood we alone in our own might, Full sure were we of losing: For us the one true Man doth fight— The Man of God's own choosing. Dost thou inquire His name? Christ Jesus we proclaim, The God who armies guides; There is no God besides,— In every field He triumphs.

- 3 What though the world should swarm with fiends Eager to tear and rend us? We will not fear; if God befriends, Success shall yet attend us,
 - The prince who rules below No harm can do us, though He looks so fierce and grim; For Christ hath judgëd him,— A little word can slay him.
- 4 Leave us they must Thy blessëd Word, For which no thanks they merit; With us abideth still the Lord, His gifts and Holy Spirit. Take, if they will, our life, Goods, honour, child, and wife; We freely let them go! They profit not the foe,— With us remains the kingdom.

May also be sung to the foregoing music.

They in the Lord that firmly trust Shall be like Sion hill, Which at no time can be removed, But standeth ever still. As round about Jerusalem The mountains stand alway, The Lord his folk doth compass so, From henceforth and for aye. 619 873.

	America das Cladia	un - chang - ing love]	Builds on the rock that nought can move

Who trusts in God's un - chang - ing love Builds on rock that nought can move. the

- 1 If thou but suffer God to guide thee, And hope in him through all thy ways, He'll give thee strength, whate'er betide thee, And bear thee through the evil days: Who trusts in God's unchanging love Builds on the rock that nought can move.
- 2 What can these anxious cares avail thee, These never-ceasing moans and sighs? What can it help if thou bewail thee O'er each dark moment as it flies? Our cross and trials do but press The heavier for our bitterness.
- 3 Only be still, and wait his leisure In cheerful hope, with heart content To take whate er thy Father's pleasure And all-deserving love hath sent; Nor doubt our inmost wants are known To him who chose us for his own.
- 4 He knows the time for joy, and truly Will send it when he sees it meet: When he has tried and purged thee throughly, And finds thee free from all deceit, He comes to thee all unaware, And makes thee own his loving care.
- 5 Nor think, amid the heat of trial That God hath cast thee off unheard; That he whose hopes meet no denial Must surely be of God preferred : Time passes, and much change doth bring, And sets a bound to every thing.
- 6 All are alike before the Highest: 'Tis easy to our God, we know, To raise thee up though low thou liest, To make the rich man poor and low; True wonders still by him are wrought Who setteth up and brings to nought.

7 Sing, pray, and keep his ways unswerving; So do thine own part faithfully, And trust his word, - though undeserving,

Thou yet shalt find it true for thee:

God never yet forsook at need

The soul that trusted him indeed.
